Frank Ross : The Insider's Guide to Home Inspection before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Insider's Guide to Home Inspection:

Drawing on his experience as a professional home inspector and employing his talent for story-telling, Frank Ross' new book The Insider's Guide to Home Inspection provides a comprehensive look at homes. Ideal for home buyers or home owners, the author uses understandable language along with helpful photographs and detailed illustrations to point out key areas and systems to examine. You will find answers to these questions: Why get a home inspection? What is a home inspection? What is an inspector? What does a home inspector do? What types of inspections are available? Also, a part of this volume are chapters covering the components of an average home: electrical, plumbing, heating and cooling, structure and the building envelope. Tips for maintaining a home and being safe in the home are also included. While this is NOT a how-to DIY home inspection checklist, this IS a guide that is sure to find a permanent place on your bookshelf.

Very well written. I like the folksy, engaging style of the book. It contains a lot of very good information, good use of humor, and significant amounts of guidance for proper home maintenance and do it yourself projects. As far as I can tell, it covers each of the most critical home inspection topics. A very logical and clean presentation of the issues. Craig Isom, Homeowner and Director of SUU Small Business Development Center Cedar City, Utah "The Insider's Guide to Home Inspection" is a perfect book for anyone who owns a home, is looking to buy a home, or selling their home. This book gives the ins and outs of what a home inspector is, the process of a home inspection, and the different things in the home that a professional home inspector checks. The Ross' give great examples and funny stories to help the reader visualize the many things that they see as home inspectors. This book will help you if you are checking out our your home yourself, and it really helps you see the need for a professional home inspection. Leslie and Dustin Sorenson Homeowners and Experienced Home Renovators Enoch, UTAbout the AuthorFrank Ross is a serial entrepreneur and a dreamer at heart. His current project is building a home on a Caribbean island. Prior to retirement, Frank started and built up Pillar to Post Home Inspection of Southwest Utah. inspecting over 4200 homes.
