Fernando de Haro, Omar Fuentes : The New Design: Decorative Details before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The New Design: Decorative Details:

Details, large or small, are a central feature of life. In homes, their role in decoration takes on crucial proportions. More than anything else, details embody the identity of the inhabitants. Furthermore, to a large extent they will also transform a house into a home. Not only do they determine the very style of the dwelling place, but they are additionally essential components in providing them with an atmosphere. Paintings, lamps, sculptures, upholstery and wallpapers, mirrors, plant pots and other decorative objects comprise a bottomless pool of tools for interior designers.

About the Author Fernando de Haro and Omar Fuentes are Mexican architects with vast experience in all areas of residential, commercial, and interior design. Their projects have garnered international awards and recognition from a variety of specialized institutions. Building on their prodigious knowledge of Mexican architecture, in 1997 Haro and Fuentes began publishing a series of beautiful, full-color, digitally photographed books entitled Mexican Architects created to foment an appreciation for the talent of the leading contemporary architects in their country. Since the release of the first volume, the series has set and maintained a benchmark of excellence and quality. They both live in Mexico City.
