3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. A Good Addition for the HobbyistBy Gary J. LeonhardtI've been slowly assembling a collection of wood working and trim books for about a year. After reading the reviews on this book I opted to buy it and don't regret it for a moment. The author's prose is very clear with some clever tips and tricks. One might not think that is very relevant; however, it would be almost impossible for only one book to contain all tips and tricks wood workers have formulated over the years. The pictures and diagrams are well laid out, clear, and get the energetic reader thinking about the possibilities for potential projects.I would recommend this book as a "must have" for anyone interested in trim carpentry.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Very well organizedBy jbsmi8I wanted to trim out my newly installed windows but I had never done it before. I bought this book, spent a little time studying the step by step instructions and excellent illustrations, then went to work. Now my wife loves her new windows and she thinks I'm a genius. I can't ask for more than that! 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful.

Book on trim By DMRExcellent

In this newly revised second edition of his popular reference on trim carpentry, Clayton DeKorne has added much new material to deliver an even more comprehensive manual on every facet of interior woodwork -- all from the perspective of a professional carpenter. From door and window casings, baseboards and ceiling moldings to wainscoting, cabinets and built-in furniture, the author provides step-by-step instructions on the mechanics of how trim is put together -- to achieve a seamless, artful look and feel.

About the Author Clayton DeKorne worked alongside his tradesman father until he became a full carpenter at age 17. Over the next decade, he advanced from lead carpenter to trim contractor before taking a position as senior editor at the Journal of Light Construction and later as founding editor of Tools of the Trade. He lives in Burlington, Vermont.
