John Harrison is passionate about the quality of our food and the ecology that supports us all on this planet. Share his

30 years' experience of growing vegetables as he takes you through the vegetable year and shows you when you should sow your seeds, dig your plot and harvest your crops.

This book is a bit like having the most experienced veg grower from the local allotments in your pocket. * Gardening Which? * The bestselling gardening book ... information-packed and down-to-earth * Mail on Sunday * This book gets down to basics, is well set out and you can get to where you want to easily. Worth every penny. * Mr. R Cannon, .co.uk * A great value no frills book packed with knowledge. Written by a genuine kitchen gardener. As a horticultural lecturer this is one book I would recommend to those new to vegetable gardening. * J. Trim, .co.uk *About the Author John Harrison has been growing vegetables for over 30 years. He uses many organic methods and works with nature rather than against it. He is passionate about the quality of our food and the ecology that supports us all on this planet. He has been a member of the Henry Doubleday Research Association (now known as Garden Organic) since 1976 after meeting with L D Hills in Bocking. He's also a member of the National Vegetable Society and currently serves as Secretary of the Crewe and Nantwich District Association of the NVS. In 2004 he started www.allotment.org.uk which is now the largest and most popular website on allotments and vegetable growing.
