Lisa Newsom, Veranda : Veranda The Art of Outdoor Living before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Veranda The Art of Outdoor Living:

I wish I could say I have a favorite outdoor space, but they are all truly stunning. It has given me exciting new ideas for several projects I am working on. I was surprised to see a couple of the other reviews that didn't feel the book showcased actual outdoor living spaces. The book is filled with them and I was invited into each space, wishing I was there with a cup of tea and book in hand. Now I want to redo my own outdoor space, again! And contrary to what one reviewer said, all the outdoor spaces and gardens are completely different and unique. Perhaps one needs to be in the design field to recognize that every outdoor space has it's own parameters and will always have it's own character. I will be giving this book to my clients for Christmas and I am certain they will enjoy it as much as I do.2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Veranda, you can do better than thisBy GoodGreifElfI work as a professional landscape artist in a wealthy community so I invest in books of this sort for inspiration and was SUPER excited when I found out Veranda (who produces such a great magazine) was covering outdoor spaces. Regrettably, I want my money back. Despite the fact that this book doesn't label plant types, which is a personal issue, they also don't cover any spaces that are truly inspiring or original. I was actually a bit bored and flipped through the book in about fifteen minutes. I do understand that not everyone has my background, but this was less inspirational or instructive as more giving the feeling that the editor had some friends with nice houses that needed to feel validated for investing in their landscapes. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Disappointed! I was expecting to get a concentrated view ...By Lawrence Kelemen Disappointed! I was expecting to get a concentrated view of Veranda's best of gardens. Lisa Newsom is fabulous and Veranda is perfect in its approach to real style and beauty. So sorry the book did not reflect Veranda's greatness. Better to look through the magazine for garden design ideas.

Also available The Houses of Veranda [back flap] Lisa Newsom founded Veranda in 1987 as a showcase for exceptional design. Trained in fine art, she possesses a camera's eye for composition and a remarkable understanding of color. From the first issue, Veranda distinguished itself with lush visual presentations, as well as substance behind the beauty. Lisa discovered and published projects by many designers who then rose to national prominence. She encouraged Veranda's readers to consult professional designers and architects and promoted to-the-trade design centers. Respected by the design community, applauded by a discerning readership and honored with numerous awards, Lisa, who began her storied career as co-founder of Southern Accents magazine in 1977, has always focused on the best. A native of Thomasville, Georgia, Lisa is passionate about interior design, architecture, and the conservation of our lands and wildlife. She has four children and nine grandchildren and divides her time between Atlanta and Cashiers, North Carolina.
