2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. a sampling of stories as varied as are gardenersBy A CustomerGardeners are all different, so the variety of tales by different authors is appropriate. This is an especially great gift for gardeners, who are also often readers-- short stories require little time or effort. Especially perfect for someone who cannot tend the garden due to infirmity, age or season.

This is a joyous, perplexing, humorous, and fulfilling look at the relationship between people and plants, written by some of the best garden essayists of our time.

About the Author Pat Stone has been an avid gardener and journalist for most of his life. He founded the literary garden magazine, GreenPrints, six years ago, based on his "The Weeder's Digest" broadcasts on public radio and CBS This Morning. Today, Pat continues to sort through the best of garden writings and illustrations for the magazine at his home in North Carolina.
